E D I T O R I A L

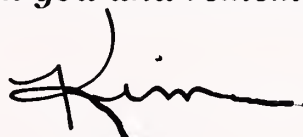

The sadness in recent months about all the deaths of so many transsexuals I have known has been very hard to take. The message of safe sex, and a drug free life is not getting through for some reason. I hope the reality that we have lost another Sister to AIDS wakes some of you up about playing safe, avoiding drugs and being tested.

Recently I produced a wonderful video I know you will enjoy immensely entitled "Substitute wife". This story of transformation and TV submission, is a glimpse into this naughty world. To get an idea look on page 20.

As always I feel very fortunate for all the response you contributors provide, but do not take this as a need to back off from sending your much needed letters, stories, and photos, with two magazines to get out on a regular basis, (FMI, and Sissy EXPOSE) we need all the help we can get. So please, keep the flame of progress alive.

Thank you and remember I love

you,

Kim Christy

By far one of the most feminine, sexy and kind transsexuals of our time has departed this world.

Morelle De Keigh, named by myself almost ten years ago, succumbed to AIDS this past August.

It came as quite a shock, as we had only seen and spoke to one another a few weeks earlier with her never mentioning her health problems.

The secret she kept must have weighed heavy on her, for Genie, (which is how we met) was very open and honest about everything in her life. Boyfriend problems, career needs, and financial woes were always openly discussed.

It is very sad to me that she did not feel free enough to discuss her untimely demise, but I guess that is the ultimate problem with this horrible killer of friends, and loved ones.

MORELLE DE KEIGH 1962-1993

Sought after for her beauty and professional attitude, Morelle always made work seem like fun with no star conflicts ever!

Our little Genie will be greatly missed. Seldom have I met a more considerate and caring person. She worried for everyone family and friends alike. Always willing to help her down and out girlfriends, sending money to family, and always trusting in God for the right thing to do.

May her trust be rewarded now, by his side. We will never forget you, sweet Genie!

BOYS WILL BE GIRLS

By Michael Martin

O kay, so I may look like the All-American boy, but, as your readers should certainly know, looks can be deceiving. In my college days, I discovered that my kind of girl was tall and leggy and sexy and gorgeous as can be. And if that kind of girl wasn't available, if I could hook up with a boy that was tall and leggy and sexy and gorgeous, well, that was often even better. An article in a local paper about a female impersonator at a Washington, DC, club, sparked my interest. For days, I carried around with me a mental Xerox copy of Jessica, based on a photo in the article. The photo showed Jessica in a short cocktail dress, highlighting long, curvy legs, and a cascade of straight, jet-black hair. From the photo, her clear, light-colored eyes, and full inviting lips, made me, well, hot. She was a true beauty, a perfect ten.

When the following weekend came, I sought out the club where Jessica performed. Once in the door, the now familiar sight of drag queens beautifully dressed from stilettos to perfectly coiffed wigs told me that I had made a good decision. Soon, Jessica gave a spirited performance of a Pat Benatar tune. I tipped her, and our eyes met as she gave me a peck on the lips. After her performance, we sat together at the bar. It was not difficult for me to attract her attention, as I am tall and handsome and straight-acting, which seems to be just what the "girls" are looking for. Before I had mustered the courage to ask her to go out with me the next weekend, she invited me back to her place for breakfast. Well, needless to say, breakfast wasn't served until later that afternoon, at a point where I was the one in a wig and makeup and nightie. That's another story, though. And my life hasn't been the same since.

My first "out-of-town" experience occurred in New Orleans, which, for reasons you'll soon find out, is now my favorite vacation spot. Everyone who has been to Bourbon Street has noticed the bar with a sign that says "Boys Will Be Girls." Most of the general (vanilla, you could say) public merely looks at the sign, makes stupid comments and moves on. A few will actually go in, and then proceed to make stupid comments. Some of these people, though, go in and find themselves with enormous hard-ons, and, voila, their lives will never be quite the same. As for me, I went in expecting to see some beauties, and to at least lay some groundwork for later on in the evening.

I was not disappointed. The club works like your normal straight strip bar. There is a stage and a jukebox and a dancer, who strips down to, eventually, a G-string. At this place, I have to think that they use some kind of customized G-strings. Girls that aren't dancing seat the patrons, and, just as at straight bars, hustle you for drinks, tips or other exciting options. Table dances are available, and they sometimes take a unique twist, as you'll later learn.

The scene is very cool. The first dancer was a beautiful blonde, with huge, perfectly shaped breasts. She started out in a nightie, with fishnet stockings and stiletto heels. When I looked at her from behind, she could have passed for Christie Brinkley, with her perfect long blonde hair, trim round ass and long legs. The tourists yucked it up, many of the men laughing nervously to cover up their sexual excitement, while you could tell many of the women were starting some fantasies of their own. I had a drink (ordered from Micki, a raven haired beauty, with a personality that was one half bitch, one half sex goddess), and watched the show. My eyes and those of the performer (her name was Lori) met. She immediately commented on that "Kevin Kostner look-alike in the back." I smiled back at her, with a look intended to show here that I wasn't a tourist, that my world wasn't vanilla and that there was a place for her in it. After her dancing, she walked the room collecting tips. I bought her an expensive red drink, and when I asked her when she go off, she told me, gazing in my eyes while her red-nailed fingers massaged my inner leg, that for $100 she was off now. I had to decline, as "Payig for it," is generally not a consideration for me. My suggestion that, afterwards, she would want to pay me was met with a smile and a comment about "business was business," but stick around, things might work out for me later.

Somewhat discouraged that it seemed I was dealing with "working" girls, I sipped my drink, and found myself watching an Ivana Trump look-alike doing a table dance. I noticed that the dancer was looking around as she grinded, and it finally occurred to me that she was making sure management wasn't noticing that her patron was giving her a blow job, as her pussy stick was pulled out from underneath her sequin-covered mini-dress. That having sufficiently juiced me up, I felt like I would probably explode if I didn't get some attention soon.

I was distracted from Ivana by the sounds of what appeared to be a staged "catfight" between two of the scarier looking queens. In that same direction, I noticed yet another sexy blonde sipping a red drink (drag queens always drink red drinks). She was seated alone at a table near the commotion. I checked her out from toe to head, and when I got to her eyes, I noticed she was staring at me. When our eyes met, she smiled. I smiled shyly, and looked away. Sure, I could go up to her table and sit with her, I thought, but the whole flirtation from afar was pretty fun also. The two of us continued to sneak glances for the next half-hour or so. During that time, I saw performances by a Whitney Houston look-alike (actually she was prettier than Whitney) and a small perfectly shaped Oriental performer. Cont'd on page #40

Letters To Kim Christy

If you wish to write to Kim and possibly have your letter published please send all correspondence to F.M.I P.O BOX 1622, STUDIO CITY CA. 91614. All letters sent are considered for unconditional publication unless otherwise specified. If you wish to have your pictures published as well, please see the new requirements for model releases and id on page 39..

Dear Ms. Christy:

We use the word "normal" as if it were something desirable. An unattainable goal you wish to achieve. Well, reading Female Mimics International has caused me to look at life in all it's many diversities with eyes wide open. And if I may be so bold as to ask you to allow me to share with your readers a perspective I've learned from their letters to you. Over the years I've been a silent witness to their hopes and tears, their pain and sorrows. Their secrets and their lies. When I sit through an issue of FMI and gaze upon the beautiful models featured within, it is hard to imagine the life each and everyone of them had in becoming "women." Only through readers letters do I gain real understanding of a lifestyle that can drive so many to abandon their lives, their families... to give up something they held dear to be true to themselves. And from understanding comes respect. Respect for you as a person. Respect for your heart. Respect for your destiny. I can only imagine the day when you realized - with startling certainty - you were different from anyone else you'd ever known. Long before you'd ever heard the word gay or transvestite or transsexual, it was painfully clear that your desires set you apart from those around you. Alone in the crowd, and you feared you always would be. When you learned the truth you rejoiced. Only to be confronted with the arrogance, the ignorance, the sheer cruelty from both the straight and gay words. As always, however, you had your dream. And you were convinced that an indomitable will - normal courage - would be enough to make it come true. For a precious few it is. The rest face a life in constant state of turmoil... or the cold embrace that is death. But the letters show your readers to be a tenacious lot, Kim. They cling to life with both hands, to rest what happiness they can from each and every moment of their lives. Never once have they faltered - did they question - the cost - of their dream. The time for debating the alleged morality of their actions long passed and buried. I have been moved by those letters telling of their informing their loved ones of the unbreakable, unshakable truth... only to be spurred and shunned. But I have also been cheered by those with the fortitude to rise above the challenge s life set them. But I sense a change in the attitudes of the letters in FMI nowadays. More self-centered. Selfish. A lack of concern for that "sister" in need of a friendly word or helping hand. That reassuring voice to help them. Your readership should be offering more solace in their letters when they read of someone in obvious pain and despair. They should write and say to that person that they just wanted them to know that what ever they were experiencing they're not going through it alone. They are part of a larger whole. Perhaps it's simply the times we live in, Kim. At a time when public tolerance of transvestites and transsexual are probably at a historic high, the TV/TS community suffers via self-isolation among it's members. FMI needs more constructive letters serving the greater good of it's readership rather than sex adventures and fantasies. Yes, there are those who enjoy such material, but a balance should be maintained in the few letter pages in the magazine there are. FMI presents a world of possibilities. I'm sure not that long ago the boy that would eventually become Heather Fontaine, or the lad that became Dana Douglas...

or even the guy that became Kim Christy, picked up a copy of Female Mimics or a similar publication and dreamed they too would become as feminine, as beautiful, as the models within. But to get the ball rolling you still needed that encouragement. Someone to make you feel good about yourself. Words to make you believe.

If not FMI then who?

Yours Sincerely,
Phil

Dear Phil,
We print all of the letters we receive, eventually. Some months not many arrive and we do not manufacture letters. We look forward to letters such as yours and hope it will inspire others to write.

Thanks,
Kim

Good morning to Kim and staff,

So far I've found your video tapes very nice, including Mysteries of Transsexual 2. Now I see why men fall over Heather Fontaine. She is a lovely lady indeed, and as I've had sex with T/S women, also nice, I am not put out on what Heather has between her legs. I spend a lot of money with you to have video tapes that also help those who don't know what is different about them, ie. T/v's or T/S's. In New Zealand news on Drag Queens is not heard a lot. I will keep purchasing video tapes, she-male solos, books and photo-sets and magazines. I've now got 8 different colored maid dresses and 4 petticoats as you will see when I get my photos developed. Bye.

Amanda Jane

Dear Amanda,

We can't wait to see you in your petticoats! We look forward to receiving your photos.

Love, Kim

"SUBSTITUTE WIFE"

A STORY OF TRANSVESTISM AND HIDDEN SEXUAL DESIRES

This is the ultimate transformation story involving an uncle and his wayward nephew. Left in the care of his big macho uncle, this naughty boy learns the ropes of femininity.

The intense spanking he is given only reinforces his submissive and female side. Willing to do anything to please his Uncle Paul, he willingly confesses to trying on various undergarments of his Aunt, while everyone was out.

Hearing this, Uncle Paul demands he dress as a "girl" to show him.

Surprise, he knew just how to use makeup and everything else! A little bitch to please.

The anticipation of dressing up in all the girlie clothes made it very difficult to even fit into panties, everything was hard and sticking out every where. Uncle Paul came in several times to give his approval and show some affection. Left alone with this big sexy man dressed as a "girl", what could be going on inside the head of this young man in a blonde wig and makeup, was he to perform like a substitute wife, and satisfy his Uncle?

Needless to say this adventure is highly erotic and very stimulating. Witnessing first hand the willing transformation of a young man into a painted up, pantie- slut, eager to satisfy and submit to the sexual advances of a real man. A fantasy fulfilled as a female substitute ready for the ultimate action.

The next time a waitress came, I asked her to send a drink over to the object of my desire. The waitress charged me an obscene price (I can live with obscenity, though) for the drinks, and delivered one to my friend. "Her name is Tasha," the waitress said. I watched as the waitress gave Tasha the drink. Tasha listened to the waitress' explanation, and then looked at me. I raised my glass, as did she. We both drank. She used her hand to brush her gorgeous mane of hair from her face. I was sufficiently aroused, and motioned for her to join me. She collected herself, and I watched her sexily stride towards me. She came to my table, told me her name and offered me her hand as she sat. I took her hand and kissed it, briefly nibbling on her little finger. I moved our chairs close, and soon we were together like any couple that you'll see at a club on a Saturday night. We had our hands on each other's knees and even a little farther. I asked her for her story. Every drag queen has a story, and they are usually great, and give wonderful insight into their lives. Tasha was only 21. She had been dressing since she was fourteen, when she would stay home from school and dress in her mother's clothes all day. When she graduated from high school, she took a job at a department store, and quickly made contacts with the salesgirls in women's clothing and make-up, who thought that this soft-spoken, cute boy, that could transform himself into a beautiful, knock-out of a woman, was very cool.

So cool, that one of the salesgirls developed an intense crush on Tasha. Tasha was initially not quite sure of her sexual preferences, so she was receptive to the advances of the salesgirl, who would often stay late at work with Tasha, dress her up, and then sneak into a dressing room with her. This was exciting to Tasha, but she still longed for boyfriends. Her new friend soon agreed to take Tasha to New Orleans, which was about an hour's drive from their town. After making their way to "Boys Will Be Girls," Tasha watched the dancers, and the way they were with the male patrons. She loved it, and the thought that she could be the object of such a man's affections held great promise to her. That night, she and her girlfriend stayed in a New Orleans hotel. On the ride home the next morning, Tasha couldn't help but think to herself that this was to be her last encounter with a woman for a while. She soon secured a job at a store in New Orleans, and moved to the city. She said that she was very shy, and not interested in "hooking," as she motioned around at the other girls in the lounge.

What she was looking for was men who could accept her, and could make her feel like a woman. As her story came to a close, I moved closer to her. I touched her face, and gazed into her green eyes (OK, so they were contacts). Her lips quivered and I kissed them. Not wanting to rush things (that's unromantic), we remained in the club, making out sporadically like teenagers at a movie. When Tasha confessed to me that she was about ready to explode, I decided it was time to move.

She drove me to her apartment. It was the usual drag queen heaven, with wigs and makeup and records and clothes all over the place. I asked her to show me around, and we had a drink as she showed me her photo album. As I admired a shot of her with a long black wig, and a red nightie with garters and fishnet heels, she kissed me, put her hand on my leg, and said, "Wait here." Ten minutes later, she was dressed in that outfit, looking like a new, but equally as beautiful, woman. She led me to the bedroom. Before we got in bed, I positioned myself behind her, kissing her shoulders, and pressing myself against her buttocks. She sighed delightedly. I turned her around, kissed her lips, and guided her into bed. We kept our clothes on for a while, exploring each other with our tongues and mouths. Finally she pulled my pants off and moved her scarlet lips down into "that sensitive region." I held back for a while, but finally had to unload. She swallowed hungrily, as I caressed her throat. For a moment, I had felt like I was in New Orleans, not New Orleans.

That was only round one, though. We lay awake in bed for the next several hours, talking, feeling, touching. It was as intimate as any love that I've made with a woman, and I'm sure Tasha was happy to have a lover that was considerably more attentive than usual. The next morning I awoke, and we had another love-making session before I caught a cab to my hotel, where I had to pack for my flight home. I entered Tasha's name and number in my book, along with four stars. That was two years ago, I've seen her once since then. She has become a part of the gay beauty contest circuit, and I spent some time with her at a regional contest in Georgia. We talk every couple of weeks or so, and, during phone sex, it's easy for me to picture her sex lips and silken legs and buttocks.

Now you know why New Orleans is a favorite town for me. I have other favorites, though, and if you readers continue to behave yourselves, maybe I'll tell you about Baltimore or Nashville.
